Solo dive to take some pictures. Just took off the stage and took the camera instead. Ended up being too light in the end (tanks were pretty empty).

Notes:
Fourth dive of the class. John followed along. Josh did the class. Line work. Perfect entanglement for Josh when he was about to put his stage on the line and his reel caught in the other line (at the tire pile). Good dive overall. Brought the stage, but it didn't work. Entanglement of flash wire but early about to hit the stage on the line. Ankle wiper. (John blew in signal to the pile). Good dive overall. Brought the camera. Oodly the batteries in one flash gave out early. Also, camera, stage, all the gear... that was a bit much. John is slowly doing better.

Notes:
Dive 5. Simulated deco. Lead Josh and Don down to 114' (Josh was told we were going to 100 and he'd lead the dive and Josh and Don were supposed to be told we were going to 100 and they had to overload him. When Josh had the back, had the camera and once again the flash was out of battery. No idea what's up with that. But viz sucked, not a huge loss. Notes:
Interesting dive. Initially it was planned that I would go on dive six with Josh and Don. So I didn't fill the twins all the way to get a higher lift... but then we talked and Steve wanted to go down to the net and put little flags in the ground so we decided that I should go with him and help him navigate. We swam to the southern-most buoy (90' from the shore) and Steve and I went to the net and Steve wanted to go down to the net and put little flags in the ground.
